“Development and Climate Change:
A Strategic Framework for the World Bank Group”

Chapter 7
Prof. VK Sapovadia	IIM Indore, India
Fight against climate change should be considered like business. Business is for profit. This is the business of society or government; it should give agency of running business to corporate houses like BPO. Corporate are efficient & effective, technology driven etc. If corporate enters into this profit making business, they will invest like any other business. Financing of climate change activity should be on same footing of any other business. Government should extend tax incentives to the business that will attract more corporate to enter in this business.
