The Institute of Policy Studies (IPS) is a think-tank dedicated to fostering good governance in Singapore through strategic policy research and discussion. It focuses on Singapore’s domestic developments and its external relations. It takes a multidisciplinary approach in its analysis, with an emphasis on long-term strategic thinking. IPS began operations in 1988. Key activities include research projects, conferences, and publications.

The institute’s mission is threefold:

- Analysis: To analyze policy issues of critical concern to Singapore and contribute to policy development
- Bridge-building: To build bridges among diverse stakeholders, including government, business, academia, and civil society
- Communication: To communicate research findings to a wider community and generate a greater awareness of policy issues

Acknowledgments

This book contains the output of a joint project between the East Asia, South Asia, and Development Economics Vice-Presidencies of the World Bank, and the Institute for Policy Studies, Singapore (IPS). It was conceived as part of the background for the World Bank’s September 2006 annual meetings in Singapore, titled “Asia in the World: The World in Asia.” The project was directed by L. Alan Winters (Director of the Development Research Group) in consultation with Arun Mahizhnan (Deputy Director of IPS), and Shanta Devarajan (Chief Economist for South Asia), Homi Kharas (Chief Economist for East Asia and Pacific), and Shahid Yusuf (Adviser, Development Research Group) of the World Bank.

We have benefited from discussions with the background paper authors, the chapter authors, and many other scholars around the world, but particular mention should be made of Suman Bery, Richard Cooper, Yasheng Huang, and T. N. Srinivasan who were external reviewers for the whole manuscript; to Shanta Devarajan, Shahrokh Fardoust, Bert Hoffman, and Homi Kharas who commented on the whole internally; and to Priya Basu, Kapil Kapoor, Faruk Khan Jeff Lewis, Robert McCauley, Mark Sundberg, and Hans Timmer who read parts of the manuscript. Audrey Kitson-Walters has provided excellent logistical support, and Trinidad Angeles and Andrea Wong provided equally excellent budgetary support.

Patricia Katayama, Nancy Lammers, and Santiago Pombo have guided the publication, and Christine Cotting provided editorial services. We are grateful to all of them.

Chapters of the book have been discussed at seminars organized by the Beijing Office of the World Bank and the Indian Council for Research on International Economic Relations (ICRIER), New Delhi, at the World Bank’s Annual Bank Conference on Development Economics (Tokyo, May 2006), and at “The Elephant and the Dragon” conference (Shanghai, July 2006). We are grateful to all their participants.

None of these people is responsible for the book’s remaining shortcomings.
