My name is ________________________________________________

You probably already know that we are conducting a study of families. We would like to talk with you a bit about what your living conditions are, what your health is like, how you eat, and whether you have enough to live on.

This is not really an ordinary study. Its goal is to collect information concerning all members of the family without exception. So we ask that you, as well as all other members of your family, answer the questions of our survey.

Your family, along with two thousand others in Kyrgyzstan, was selected for study by a computer, and the choice was made by chance. The information gathered in the course of the research will be used only in a general form in order to obtain an overall picture of the life of people in Kyrgyzstan.

We understand that you will spend part of your free time on the interview. In addition, answering our questions is, of course, work. So we will pay you as well as we can.

Our interview will concern where you used to live and where you live now, how you work and how you relax, and what your health and nutrition are like.

But before we begin our discussion I want to clarify the meaning of the words "family" and "household," which will often be encountered in our interview. Under the word "family," or to use another word "household," we mean all the people who live together with you and who have incomes and expenses in common, including the unmarried children of any of the members of your family who are younger than 18 years of age and who do not live with you because of studying in another population point.
