Panel 1: The Institutional Foundations for Performance Budgeting

Bruce Stacy

Bruce is currently the Executive Director of the Results-based Management Directorate in the Expenditure Management Sector of the Treasury Board Secretariat. Bruce's career has spanned some twenty 20 years split between operational departments and a central agency. Bruce's last 7 years have been with the Secretariat working in the results-based management/performance budgeting areas. He has been actively involved in improving performance reporting, implementing a government wide policy framework to establish performance metrics for all federal government programs, and a strategic review tool that allows for the review and assessment of government program efficiency and effectiveness. Bruce now manages a team responsible for evaluation, parliamentary reporting and accountability and performance budgeting policy.
